C. 15 students, who completed reading training in May, were retested on 23 and 24 July. These students showed excellent retention of their skill gains.

D. The retest last week marked the completion of the first phase of the experimental design, which A&E drafted, to achieve a more precise measurement of information reading. This first phase should yield some basis of equivalence of our tests, but because of the termination of the reading course, the entire design will not be completed.

E. The Reading Techniques for clerical personnel began its final week of training on Monday. The students feel that the course has been very successful.

*Beautiful job.
